Telephone Workers Called To Millersport After Wires Are Downed

By International News Service
Thunderstorms, accompanied by high winds, caused widespread property loss in scattered sections of Ohio and brought death to three persons.

Mrs. Marjorie Steele Moore, 27, of North Canton, was electrocuted when a high voltage wire torn down by the storm fell on her automobile near Congress Lake, northwest of Canton.

Mrs. Moore's daughter, Judith, and Mrs. William I. Hershey, 26, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Roy Moore, were burned and received severe shocks in escaping from the car.

A brief but lashing wind and rain storm caused thousands of dollars worth of property damage at Youngstown and crippled the fire and police communication systems.

Street car and trolley bus service was suspended for several hours as a result of the storm and gasoline motor coaches were pressed into service.

In a quarter of an hour more than an inch of rain fell, weather observers said. It was reported that nearly 100 trees were uprooted in the city by the wind.

Youth Killed in Home
At Lewisburg, Preble county, 21-year-old Cecil Rhodes was killed when struck by lightning while seated in the home of John and Damon Clegg. The bolt struck the house and following the ceiling to a mirror under which the youth was seated, then hit him. Both Cleggs were knocked unconscious by the shock but revived.

A 50-mile-an-hour gale from the west struck Dayton, leaving in its wake fallen trees and poles. Traffic and power service were disrupted.

Columbus and nearby towns got a touch of the storm but little damage was reported here. A thunderstorm accompanied by a high wind did some damage to trees and crops in that section.

Five employees of the Citizens Telephone Co., Circleville, were called to Millersport, Thursday night, after a severe storm in that district caused heavy damage to telephone equipment.

Those who made the trip were E. W. Lutz, Earl Kibler, Charles Sampson, Bert Poling and Ross Skaggs.

Rites For County Farmer Saturday

Funeral services for Harry H. Stevenson, 46, who was killed Thursday afternoon by lightning, will be conducted Saturday at 2 p. m. at his late home in Walnut township. The Rev. S. C. Elisea of New Plymouth will officiate with burial to be in New Holland cemetery by the Mader funeral service.

Mr. Stevenson was shocking wheat when the storm broke. He was killed instantly.

Born in Perry township Dec. 22, 1892, he was a son of Hugh and Ella Streevey Stevenson. He married Bertha Mills in 1913, his widow surviving. Five brothers and four sisters also survive.

Mr. Stevenson farmed the Otis D. Mader property, known as the Snyder homestead near Brinker's Corners.

HEAVY CREAM CAN FALLS; TRUCKER'S FOOT BROKEN

Nelson Sweyer, E. Union street, suffered two broken bones in his right foot about 7:30 a. m. Friday when he was unloading a cream can at the rear of Sievert's confectionery, W. Main street, from the Railway Express truck.

Mr. Sweyer was employed as truck driver while Ernest Linkhart, truck driver, was on vacation.

The foot was placed in a cast where it will remain for three or four weeks. Mr. Sweyer said his foot slipped as he was removing the can from the truck and the can dropped on his foot. He was treated at the office of Dr. E. L. Montgomery.

LITTLE GIRL ARRIVES IN HOME OF GENE TUNNEY

NEW YORK, June 23 — Gene Tunney, former world's heavyweight champion, proudly announced today the fourth visit of the stork to his home and this time the arrival of a girl to join the three boys in the Tunney family.

Mrs. Tunney, the former Polly Lauder, socialite, was reported as doing nicely. The baby was born at Harkness pavilion in Medical Centre. The new arrival weighed eight pounds, one and one-half ounces.

LOVE BALM SUIT AGAINST RUTHIE IN JUDGE'S HANDS

LOS ANGELES, June 23 — It remained with Superior Judge Samuel R. Blake today to determine whether Mrs. Alma Alderman's $150,000 love piracy suit against Ruth Etting, the radio singer, will be continued.

Judge Blake has under consideration a motion by Bernard Cohen, counsel for Miss Etting, to dismiss Mrs. Alderman's charges that Miss Etting, former wife of Martin Moses Snyder, stole the love of Myrl Alderman, who for several years earned his living as a piano player for the singer.

Alderman and Miss Etting are now married. They eloped during the trial of Snyder, familiarly known in Chicago as "Moe the Gimp," who was convicted on charges that he shot and seriously wounded Alderman in Hollywood last October 15.

Neither Alderman nor Miss Etting has been present at the hearing, Miss Etting basing her defense on a deposition which she gave to Mrs. Alderman's attorney several months ago, in which she denied she had taken Alderman away from Mrs. Alderman.

Scioto River Flood Work Wins Favor

$250,000 For Reservoir At Delaware Included In General Program

A Scioto river project that may be a bellringer for additional constructions along the stream throughout central Ohio depended today on President Roosevelt's signature. It is an item for $250,000 with which to erect a reservoir at Delaware, designed to help control flood waters of the Scioto.

The amount is included in a bill approved by congress Thursday and sent to the White House for the President's approval.

The total money sought in the measure is $135,000,000 of which $37,000,000 would come to Ohio. In addition to the Delaware project work is scheduled for Ironton, Portsmouth, New Boston, Cincinnati, Massillon, Martins Ferry, Wellsville, Newark, Frazzysburg and parts of the Muskingum Conservancy district.

Amounts for reservoirs would include the cost of lands with local interests paying for projects such as flood walls.

The Delaware reservoir has been listed several times for construction. Several other reservoirs to help control flood waters in the Scioto valley are being considered, one located at Harrisburg on Big Darby and another north of Williamsport on Deer-creek.

Englishmen Stripped As Jap Sentries Search Clothes At Zone Borders

TIENTSIN, June 23 — All doubt about the fatal power of the live barbed wire the Japanese have strung around the international zone at Tientsin was removed today when the first electrocution victim was found.

A Chinese, he was discovered slumped over the wire at the border of the British concession this morning.

Warnings to all foreign consulates were sent by Japanese authorities when they charged the barbed wire Tuesday, and protests from the consular authorities speedily followed.

It was understood that the wire was charged with 220 volts, but the Japanese would not reveal the amperage, nor even confirm that the electric charge could kill a man.

The Chinese was found within a few hundred yards of the United States marine barracks.

British Fear Mobs

Fuming over alleged new indignities at the hands of Japanese sentries, and angered by the apparent inactivity of their government in London, Britons today were forced to adopt extraordinary defense measures as the possibility of mob action against the isolated foreign settlement arose.

As the blockade of the British and French concessions entered the tenth day, Japanese agitation among the Chinese of Tientsin continued, and today, it was reported, the Nipponese planned an anti-British mass meeting in the Japanese area.

The volunteer corps, 100 strong, and police and troops in the British sector were on the alert against the possibility that an attempt might be made to incite mobs to march on the concession.

Food prices rose higher in the concessions today, but at last there was an adequate supply of milk, and the need for other products is not yet acute. The food situation on Kulangsu, the international island at Amoy where the Japanese have applied a naval blockade is much more critical, however.

RIVER CONTINUES TO FALL; HEAVY CROP LOSS NOTED

The Scioto river continued to recede, Friday, with the lowlands rapidly draining. Observers said the stream would be back in bank by Friday evening.

With the receding of the water, Pickaway county farmers reported heavy losses from the flood. Crops in the lowlands were seriously damaged and the season of the year makes it difficult to replace the corn, the major crop of the bottom lands. Many farmers believe it is too late to replant corn. James I. Smith Jr., of the Esmeralda Canning Co., said experience in previous years had shown that corn planted this late seldom yields a good crop.

Mr. Smith said about 500 acres of land owned by Mrs. Julia E. and Mrs. Nellie R. Smith, in the lowlands, had been flooded. He said the flood waters caused heavy losses on field corn, wheat, soybeans and sweet corn.

Rain in the 24 hours prior to 8 a. m. Friday in Circleville amounted to only .05 of an inch. Thursday's high temperature was 90. Lowest in the night was 68.

A major Russo-Japanese aerial clash in Manchukuo, and threats of a new German stroke in Europe, dominated the far-flung international crisis today. Developments:

TOKYO — Japanese army dispatches said 150 Soviet airplanes invaded Manchukuo from Soviet-dominated Outer Mongolia yesterday. Eighteen Japanese planes engaged them and claimed they brought down 49 planes with a loss of five Japanese craft. This reported battle followed 16 Soviet air raids on four Manchu towns on June 17 and 19, the army asserted.

PARIS — French quarters heard that Germany is manning the French, Belgian, Dutch and Polish borders on a war crisis, making gigantic preparations for an early stroke aimed at Danzig and possibly even more territory.

LONDON — Foreign Secretary Halifax summoned Japanese Ambassador Shigemitsu to warn him that indignities inflicted on Britons at Tientsin are "intolerable." But Premier Chamberlain said Britain is not yet ready for retaliation.

HONG KONG — Britain defiantly advised merchantmen to resume sailings for Swatow as a third American destroyer was reported sailing for the South China port, newly captured by the Japanese.

SINGAPORE — Forty-four British and French naval and army officers arranged for protection of Hong Kong and stationing of a combined fleet at Singapore in the event of war.

TIENTSIN — Fearing mob action by Japanese-agitated Chinese, Britons in their isolated concession took special defense measures.

WASHINGTON — Collaborating with Britain and France in applying diplomatic pressure, the United States is firmly determined to resist all attempts by Japan to close the "open door" in China, a high official authority declared.

Velma West, Pals Still Elude State Officers

COLUMBUS, June 23 — Whereabouts of Velma West and three other inmates who escaped with her from the state reformatory at Marysville remained a mystery today after the latest clue led peace officers here on a fruitless chase.

A cruiser from the Franklin county sheriff's office rushed to suburban Westerville early this morning following receipt of a report that two women were seen walking along the highway.

Officers reported that when the suspects saw the car approaching, they ran across a field and down a railroad siding. Picked up later by another cruiser, the two proved to be 16-year-old Columbus girls.

Both were held for questioning to determine what they were doing out at dawn.

While the petite Lake county husband slayer apparently was enjoying her self-styled "adventure" in the outside world, Mrs. Marguerite Reiley, superintendent of the institution, prepared to carry on her inquiry inside the walls.

Meanwhile, Lenora Leach, an inmate, was back in the "dungeon" after Mrs. Reiley branded as a liar her "whole truth" version of the quartet's escape.

The Leach woman reportedly told the prison head she unlocked the door to the cell occupied by Florence Sheline, one of those who escaped, but that she did not know Velma was in the runaway. She said she got the key from Florence earlier.

"I don't believe it," Mrs. Reiley commented after listening to the story. "Lenora will talk more and give us the whole truth."

While the investigation continued, state and local police throughout Ohio and adjoining states tracked down reports of persons who said they saw the women at one time or another. In addition to Velma and the Sheline woman, Virginia Brawdy, 19, Akron, and Mary Ellen Richards, 33, Cincinnati, are being sought.

TOKYO REPORTS 49 OF MOSCOW'S RAIDERS DOWNED

Attention Taken Away From Tientsin Situation After Air Encounters

FIVE NIPPONESE LOST

Disputed Mongolian Border Scene Of Trouble; Other Attacks Claimed

TOKYO, June 23 — Routing of a vast Soviet air armada of 150 planes, with 49 sent crashing to the ground by a handful of Japanese aircraft, was reported today in army dispatches telling of intensified Soviet aerial activity on the Manchukuoan-Outer Mongolian border.

One of the tensest situations in the history of turbulent Russo-Japanese relations arose when, according to a communique from the Kwantung (Japanese continental) army headquarters at Hsinking, Manchukuo, 150 Soviet airplanes soared across the Manchukuo border at 4 p. m. Thursday.

They were promptly engaged by 18 Japanese planes, the dispatch asserted, and 49 Soviet and five Japanese craft were brought down.

This, the greatest air battle ever reported in that area, climaxed a series of Soviet offenses, according to the Japanese, in which 16 other raids were carried out from Soviet-controlled Outer Mongolia.

All the attacks took place, Kwantung army advisers said, in the vicinity of Lake Buir, through which the Manchukuoan-Mongolian boundary, never clearly defined, runs East and West at a point where the two states dovetail.

Earlier Raids Reported

Hsinking dispatches to Domei, the Japanese official news agency, told of earlier raids on five towns near Lake Buir. Attributing the charges to a spokesman for the Kwantung army, Domei said:

"Soviet and Outer Mongol air forces, which had been silent since the Nomonhan incident, in which they suffered serious losses, resumed activity June 17."

(Around 700 Mongol troops were killed June 1 near Nomonhan in an "invasion" of Manchukuo, the Kwantung army charged at that time. In connected aerial battles, 59 Soviet airplanes were brought down, so today's claims would make the total of Soviet aerial losses 108. Minor land and naval clashes have occurred over a period of years along the rivers and land boundaries of Siberia and Manchukuo.)

"More than a dozen planes at 6 a. m. June 17 raided Haronalsal, bombing the town and causing some casualties among the civilians," Domei continued.

"Again, at 7 a. m. June 17 and the same hour June 19, 17 Soviet planes raided Kanjurimiao, on the northern shore of Lake Buir, where their bombs destroyed one private house and five hundred cases of gasoline stored for the Manchukuo troops."

"Soviet planes also raided Amkulo. They dropped incendiary bombs, destroying fodder for use (Continued on Page Six)

EXPENDITURES IN LAST YEAR PASS 9-BILLION MARK

WASHINGTON, June 23 — Expenditure for the fiscal year ending June 30 passed the $9,000,000,000 point today and marked the costliest peacetime year for the U. S. treasury.

With another week still remaining before the close of the fiscal period, the government has expended $400,000,000 more than in 1938, which was the high-water mark of prior New Deal years.

It was estimated that by June 30 another $400,000,000 will be expended. The fact that only $5,585,000,000 of revenues has been collected gives the government a deficit of $3,420,000,000, nearly three times the size of the deficit a year ago.

SINGAPORE, June 23 — Concrete arrangements for powerful British-French naval and military cooperation in the event of war in the Far East were reached today in a two-day conference of 44 army and navy officers of both nations.
Protection of Hong Kong, Britain's crown colony in South China, was carefully planned, and preparations were made for stationing a combined battle fleet at Singapore, Britain's "Gibraltar of the Orient," in case of war.
A "serious view" was taken of the blockade at Tientsin, conferees said.
As a result of the situation, it was believed that Admiral Sir Percy Noble, commander of the British Asiatic fleet, would hasten his return to China from Britain.

CAR WITH TAGS FROM TWO STATES FOUND IN FIELD

The sheriff's department was checking, Friday, to learn the identity of the owner of a 1936 Chevrolet coach found in a field along Route 23, north of Valley View.
Deputy Sheriff Robert Adkins said the car had left the highway and went down a steep bank into the field sometime Thursday night. It did not overturn. The car had both West Virginia and Ohio license plates.

TOKYO REPORTS 49 OF MOSCOW'S RAIDERS DOWNED

Attention Taken Away From Tientsin Situation After Air Encounters
FIVE NIPPONESE LOST
Disputed Mongolian Border Scene Of Trouble; Other Attacks Claimed

TOKYO, June 23 — Routing of a vast Soviet air armada of 150 planes, with 49 sent crashing to the ground by a handful of Japanese aircraft, was reported today in army dispatches telling of intensified Soviet aerial activity on the Manchukuoan-Outer Mongolian border.
One of the tensest situations in the history of turbulent Russo-Japanese relations arose when, according to a communique from the Kwantung (Japanese continental) army headquarters at Hsinking, Manchukuo, 150 Soviet airplanes soared across the Manchukuo border at 4 p. m. Thursday.
They were promptly engaged by 18 Japanese planes, the dispatch asserted, and 49 Soviet and five Japanese craft were brought down.
This, the greatest air battle ever reported in that area, climaxed a series of Soviet offenses, according to the Japanese, in which 16 other raids were carried out from Soviet-controlled Outer Mongolia.
All the attacks took place, Kwantung army advices said, in the vicinity of Lake Buir, through which the Manchukuoan-Mongolian boundary, never clearly defined, runs East and West at a point where the two states dovetail.
Earlier Raids Reported
Hsinking dispatches to Domei, the Japanese official news agency, told of earlier raids on five towns near Lake Buir. Attributing the charges to a spokesman for the Kwantung army, Domei said:
"Soviet and Outer Mongol air forces, which had been silent since the Nomonhan incident, in which they suffered serious losses, resumed activity June 17."
(Around 700 Mongol troops were killed June 1 near Momonhan in an "invasion" of Manchukuo, the Kwantung army charged at that time. In connected aerial battles, 59 Soviet airplanes were brought down, so today's claims would make the total of Soviet aerial losses 108. Minor land and naval clashes have occurred over a period of years along the rivers and land boundaries of Siberia and Manchukuo.)
"More than a dozen planes at 6 a. m. June 17 raided Haronahsal, bombing the town and causing some casualties among the civilians," Domei continued.
"Again, at 7 a. m. June 17 and the same hour June 19, 17 Soviet planes raided Kanjurmiao, on the northern shore of Lake Buir, where their bombs destroyed one private house and five hundred cases of gasoline stored for the Manchukuo troops."
"Soviet planes also raided Amulko. They dropped incendiary bombs, destroying fodder for use (Continued on Page Six)

Expenditures In Last Year Pass 9-Billion Mark

WASHINGTON, June 23 — Expenditure for the fiscal year ending June 30 passed the $9,000,000,000 point today and marked the costliest peacetime year for the U. S. treasury.
With another week still remaining before the close of the fiscal period, the government has expended $400,000,000 more than in 1936, which was the high-water mark of prior New Deal years.
It was estimated that by June 30 another $400,000,000 will be expended. The fact that only $5,585,000,000 of revenues has been collected gives the government a deficit of $3,420,000,000, nearly three times the size of the deficit a year ago.

Ashville The Willard Barch carpenter force is busy at the new Harry Sark dwelling on Walnut street and making good progress considering their between showers schedule. ## 31 SALOONS AND GAMING HOUSES CLOSED BY RAIDS

JACKSON, Miss., June 23 — Thirty-one saloons and gambling establishments in Rankin county's so-called "gold coast" district were closed today following the largest mass raids in the history of Mississippi by 150 national guardsmen. Troopers arrested 60 persons in the raids and smashed an estimated $100,000 worth of equipment in the establishments. It was claimed the raided spots were openly violating Mississippi's bone dry and anti-gambling laws.

If junipers, boxbushes, spruces and other plants subject to red spider mites are sprayed frequently with cold water during hot dry spells these insects will be kept under control. A sulphur dust or oil spray will have to be used if the mites become too numerous.

Bette Davis In "Juarez"

LOVELY Bette Davis, rated as No. 1 among the nation's actresses, plays the featured role of Empress Carlota in "Juarez" opening Sunday and continuing through Monday at the Chakera Grand theatre. The "gamut of emotions" which actresses have long since worn thin has been the route Miss Davis has followed to stardom, in spite of the triteness of the phrase. The rank of empress seems to be a fitting climax for her interesting career, for the short-lived Mexican monarchy, in "Juarez," she changes from an ideally happy bride, fulfilling the royal destiny to which she was born to a woman for whom life holds no ray of happiness. Bette has suffered before, in other pictures. Very recently she went blind in "Dark Victory." In several pictures she has died. In "Marked Woman" Bette played the role of a disreputable woman and wore the scars provided by Percy Westmore of the studio makeup department to demonstrate the fate of those who take the "easy way." In "Jezebel" she was last shown on her way to almost certain death from plague in an effort to redeem herself for her previous selfishness. The was the role for which she won her most recent Academy award.

AT THE CLIFTONA

Capturing in vivid fashion a slice of the American scene from 1911 to 1918, "The Story of Vernon and Irene Castle," which opens Sunday at the Cliftona, stars Fred Astaire and Ginger Rogers in their most distinguished vehicle to date.

As its title indicates, the film deals with the dazzling career of the noted pre-war dancing couple; and it was a happy thought to team the wing-footed Fred and Ginger in the respective roles of the Castles, for they are perfectly cast as that famous duo, and their interpretation of the Castle routines are delightful to behold.

The film's story begins with Vernon Castle at the time when he was a knockabout "stooge" (although the term wasn't invented at that time) for comedian Lew Fields. Fields, incidentally, plays himself in the picture, and does it brilliantly.

Vernon meets Irene, an enthusiastic but untrained amateur dancer, and marries her. She persuades him to give up comedy for dancing, and the two, rebuffed in New York, go to Paris, and by a lucky accident get a start there. Soon they are the sensation of two continents, and their meteoric career, ended by Vernon's enlistment in the Royal Flying Corps—to be followed by his death four years later in a Texas air crash—forms the colorful basis of the plot.

Against the fleeting backgrounds of Paris cafes, New York theatres and ballrooms, flying fields and motion-picture studios, are painted the highlights of the famous team's creations—the Castle Waltz, the Castle Tango, the Maxixe, the Castle Polka. And as recreated by Astaire and Miss Rogers under the remembering eyes of Mrs. Vernon Castle herself they are among the most notable dances the screen has ever featured.

Musically, too, the picture is a treat. Scores of old-time tunes, "Pretty Baby," "Waitin' for the Robert E. Lee," "Missouri Waltz" and others of that melodic vintage, are abundantly scattered through the offering, either as songs sung by one or the other of the stars, or as dance music for their graceful routines.

Other music details of the program will be Kostelanetz' playing of his "Mary Had A Little Lamb," a novelty piece which has for some months been a best-selling record; "Strange Enchantment," a popular song, by Kay Thompson and her 12 Rhythm Singers; and "Night Must Fall," the current Cugat hit, with Kay, her swingers and the orchestra.

CAST PICKED

Dwight Weist will play the title role when the first program in the new Mr. District Attorney series is broadcast in place of the Bob Hope program Tuesday, June 27, over the NBC-Red network. Dealing with the activities of a national arson ring and how the ring is smashed by the law, the inaugural broadcast in the sponsored series will also star Frank Lovejoy in a role of a professional "torch"; Arlene Frances as his conscience-stricken wife; Adelaide Klein as an Italian mother, and the Dillon brothers, John, Andy and Paul, as a trio of tenement kids. Ed Byron will produce the series.

GOODMAN MAY GET DECREE

According to a story released nationally last weekend, reports circulated on Harvard Campus that Benny Goodman, King of Swing and maestro on the CBS Caravan program which moves to the NBC-Red network Saturday, July 8, may be awarded an honorary degree at commencement exercises. Goodman said he had not heard anything about it "officially." Harvard University officials never make any comments on honorary degrees prior to conferring them.

RADIOS STOLEN IN TWO CITIES

Cussins & Fearn Co. Stores Hunt Two Men Following Thursday Thefts

Theft of a portable radio, valued at $21.95, from the Circleville Cussins & Fearn store was reported to police Thursday evening.

This radio theft was the second reported Thursday in Cussins & Fearn stores. The radio was believed stolen from the Circleville store about 4 p. m. About 45 minutes earlier two radios were stolen from the Chillicothe store of the company.

Two men are involved in the thefts, police say. One of the men was wearing a dark suit. The other, officers were told, had on light green trousers, a brown silk sport shirt, straw hat, was about 38 or 40 years old, five feet eight inches tall, and weighed about 145 pounds.

Many dwarf early growing flowering herbaceous plants, such as violas and candytufts, are improved by being cut back before they go to seed.

Cut back several stalks of a clump of hollyhocks and these will branch out and bloom later, thus giving a second crop of blossoms.

ZOG AND QUEEN PLAN VISIT TO UNITED STATES

NEW YORK, June 23—Exiled King Zog of Albania and Queen Geraldine will arrive in the United States within the next few weeks for an extended visit, it was announced today by Baroness Suzanne De Strasser.

The royal couple, now in Istanbul, will be accompanied by their infant son, Crown Prince Skander, who was born a scant few hours before the Italian legions recently invaded Albania, according to the baroness.

The baroness said she received this information from the 23-year-old queen whom she recently visited in exile.

METHODISTS AT BLOOMFIELD TO HAVE FESTIVAL

Homecoming Sunday will be observed Sunday in the South Bloomfield Methodist church.

The Rev. T. A. Ballinger is pastor of the South Bloomfield Methodist charge.

ROTARY ENJOYS MAGICIAN

F. D.'S ADVISERS CLAIM SUPPORT FOR NEW TERM

President Already Pledged Half Enough Delegates For Nomination

ILLINOIS FALLS IN LINE

Mayor Kelly Says State Certain To Approve Third Election

WASHINGTON, June 23 — President Roosevelt already has assurances of 284 votes better than half the way mark—for a third term nomination in the 1940 Democratic convention, New Dealers declared today.

The President, they say, will get New York's 94 votes and Illinois' 58, if he seeks a third term, on top of those already pledged him. His total, if these assurances are carried out, would leave him about 267 short of the nomination, as 551 votes is expected to be a majority in the next Democratic convention.

Mr. Roosevelt has been assured the Pennsylvania (72), New Jersey (32) and Indiana (28) votes if he desires the nomination. Senator Guffey gave the Pennsylvania pledge, Senator Smathers the New Jersey promise, while both former Governor Paul V. McNutt, a potential candidate in his own right, and Senator Sherman Minton assured him of Indiana support.

Farley Aid Pledged

The New Deal claim of New York's 94 votes is not surprising. It is the President's home state. The state Democratic chairman is National Chairman James A. Farley, who has told all his friends he will go down the line for Mr. Roosevelt if the President seeks another four years in the White House.

The Illinois claim was endorsed by Mayor Edward J. Kelly, of Chicago. In the capital for conferences with Secretary of the Interior Ickes on the Chicago subway project, Kelly said: "Of course, Illinois is for Roosevelt. From what I learn of the general drift of popular sentiment, the people of Illinois want Roosevelt."

KILLER'S RUN OF LUCK REACHES END IN PRISON

MICHIGAN CITY, Ind., June 23 — "Lucky Jimmy" Swain's luck ran out early today when he was executed in the electric chair at the Michigan City prison for the holdup-murder of an Evansville, Ind., grocer.

Swain, 22-year-old Negro, won the name of "Lucky Jimmy" among mates after he three times had been snatched from the shadow of the electric chair by legal maneuvers only minutes before the death march was to start.

The execution was carried out quickly, Swain walking to the chair unassisted. According to prison officials he didn't say a word from the time he was taken from his cell at 12:03 a. m., until he was pronounced dead at 12:08.

INSPECTOR NEED CITED AFTER 21 SUFFER POISON

COLUMBUS, June 23—Partial blame for the poisoning of 21 girls who reportedly ate sandwiches in the same place was laid today to a shortage of city restaurant inspectors.

While health authorities awaited the analysis of samples of food eaten by the victims, six still were in a hospital but were expected to be released late today. The others went home after receiving emergency hospital care.

Commenting on the mass illness resembling ptomaine poisoning, Dr. Nelson C. Dysart, city health director, said his department had been handicapped for five years by a shortage of inspectors. Only two now are checking up on all restaurants in the city, he said.

The girls were stricken suddenly when taking examinations before the state board of cosmetology. Some toppled off their chairs and rolled to the floor in agony. Two were unconscious before ambulances arrived, and several others were unable to walk to the vehicles. Hospital attaches reported all were out of danger today.

Those still in the hospital were Irene Fuvis, 19, Lucille Sarver, 19, Elizabeth Eckert, 19, Elizabeth Miller, 15, Akron; Hazel Yorke, 24, Stowe, near Akron and Velma Rayl, 24, Kent.

Howard L. Shearer, executive secretary of the cosmetology board, said all of those stricken had eaten ham sandwiches in the same restaurant.

TO PICKAWAY COUNTIANS

FRIENDS: The recently successful Father and Son banquet in Circleville, sponsored by the Pickaway District, Boy Scouts of America, was very encouraging to those responsible for the administration of Scouting in this District. It is their hope this can be made into an annual affair. As a result of this meeting, many fathers have indicated that they would welcome an opportunity to assist in the further understanding and development of this worthwhile work for boys. Incorporated herewith are some practical suggestions in this regard.

If you are the father of a Scout, take advantage of the opportunity to help others help your son by:

(1) Encouraging your boy in Scouting—attending the weekly troop meetings, advancing in Scout rank, paying dues, and going to Summer camp;

(2) Cooperating with Troop Leaders—learn what they are doing and offer your assistance; and

(3) Volunteering your services, if at all possible, as a member of the Troop Committee, or in some other leadership responsibility.

If you do not have a Scout in your family, but are interested in boys:

(1) Contact your pastor or school authorities and see that your church or school is actively sponsoring a Boy Scout Troop;

(2) Commend the men who volunteer their time and efforts as Scoutmasters and Counselors for the boys of the Community; and

(3) Speak well of the Movement especially to parents, and urge all boys to join a Scout Troop.

Every year in Pickaway county approximately 300 boys become 12 years of age. Less than one-fourth of these come under the influence of Scouting ideals because there is no troop for them to join. Scouting is not just a good thing, but an IMPORTANT thing.

CIRCUITEER.

TO SERVICE DEPARTMENT

OFFICIALS: A closer check should be kept by the service department on lights on bridges, especially those on the W. High street bridge. A resident of the district reports two of the lights have been out for seven or eight weeks and two others out for eight or ten days. It is important for the safety of motorists and pedestrians that bridge lights be kept in good repair. Some difficulty has been experienced in children breaking lights with stones and air guns. Police could make regular trips over the bridges. A few arrests for destroying city property would break up the practice.

TO THE STREET DEPARTMENT

EMPLOYEES: Have you noticed the pools of water that stand on Watt street just east of Court street after heavy rains? Cars passing through the pools throw water clear to the sidewalks. If it is impossible to repave the low sections, an application of patching material in the depressions may help the drainage to some extent.

TO REV. G. L. TROUTMAN

DEAR SIR: You should feel proud indeed of the high regard displayed by members of your congregation on your completion of 10 years of service to Trinity Lutheran church as its junior pastor. You deserve congratulations for your work in the church. Your church has enjoyed a steady growth, activities have increased and in general your 10 years of service can be viewed with the highest pride.

CIRCUITEER.

TO COUNCILMEN

MEMBERS: The decision of council to have relief for city clients handled through the county relief department seems a very wise move. Pickaway county's relief department, headed by D. H. Marcy, has been praised on numerous occasions for its efficient operation under trained personnel. The establishment of a relief department by the city would involve the expenditure of a considerable sum. Since the county department has complete records on city cases, and has been handling all the city relief work, it would appear unwise to establish a city relief agency.

GENTLEMEN: What progress has been made on the flood control program that would aid Pickaway county farmers? Thousands of acres of Pickaway county land have been flooded this week by the Scioto river. It is impossible to estimate the loss to farmers. Some believe the flooded crops will be destroyed, others have hopes of saving a part of their crops. Some steps should be taken to control the floods along the Scioto river. There have been surveys made but no promise of aid to farmers of the lowland districts. Floods could be controlled on the stream if dams were built in the tributaries. Farmers of the county should organize and start a campaign to obtain federal aid on a flood control project that would aid this district. A well organized group would receive recognition.

World At A Glance

—By—
Charles P. Stewart

IF A REPUBLICAN presidential straw vote were to be taken right now I fancy that Senator Arthur H. Vandenberg of Michigan would head the list. He was about second in line, trailing Thomas E. Dewey, on recent tallies, whatever they may have been worth. Today I believe, from talks I've had with numerous G. O. P. politicians on Capitol Hill, that he'd nose out Tommy. His one-term declaration is what appears to have done the business.

Had Dewey thought of it first, probably he would have greatly increased his lead ahead of Vandenberg. He didn't think of it first, though. Vandenberg did.

It was an extraordinary bright political hunch. Should the senator be taken at his word, get the nomination and be elected, maybe he'll be deeply regretful in 1944 that he so pledged himself. Nevertheless his expression was a corkingly brilliant new idea as to 1940. It's all the better because of the prevalence of Roosevelt third-term talk.

What rings the bell is the contrast. That impression is pretty sure to linger in "Van's" favor even if "F. D." finally refuses to run again.

OTHER MATTERS INVOLVED

Other things are involved, too. Senator Vandenberg implies that a lot of New Deal policies have been very popular, but, in his opinion, naturally very injurious.

His hint is that the next president (if an anti-New Dealer) will get himself thoroughly disliked by fighting for a return to what he considers sound economics. "O. K.," is his answer. "I'm willing to go through four desperately unpopular years for the sake of ultimate prosperity. Then I'll quit and leave the future to MY-improved posterity. In MY four years I'll be hated, but later generations will bless me."

This sounds like middling self-abnegating.

It not only outclasses Roosevelt, in his second term already. It also, so far as anyone knows, outclasses Dewey. The latter presumably would acquiesce to at least two terms, if available. The suggestion is that Tommy (assuming his nomination and election) would play a certain amount of politics during his initial White House tenancy with a view to a renomination.

FREE TO FIGHT

Vandenberg serves advance notice that, once in, he'll raise hedges regardless of consequences to HIMSELF, so long as hedges is good for the country. He guarantees it, with his one-term declaration.

I don't say that the senator intended to deflate Dewey, but he needed to, to get himself nominated in 1940, and that's what I think he DID do, with his one-term promise.

Dewey, though now a New Yorker, originated in Michigan. "Van" likewise is a Michigander. Two favorite sons from one state is a redundancy. One or the other is well advised to obscure his rival. "Van" seems to have out-publicized "Tommy". Dewey had the initial advantage of being a novelty and there's a charm in novelty. Vandenberg, as a well-recognized statesman, was something of an old story as a pre-proclaimed one-term. In that role HE'S a novelty.

BUT AS TO ELECTION?

Vandenberg has one basic advantage. He's a substantiality—nationally tried in the senate. Nobody knows much about Dewey, except as a local prosecutor.

DEFLATION was what he called for. He's had it.

This isn't to say that Vandenberg, if nominated, will be elected. I don't make that prediction. All I'm alleging is that Vandenberg and Dewey have struck me, basing by judgment on straw polls, as being the two conspicuous Republican nominatorial candidates.

At a guess, at present, I'd bet on Vandenberg.

Previously I'd have bet on Dewey.

Not today, though.

Physicians Stumped by Fever Blisters!

By LOGAN CLENDENING, M. D.

THIS column is often, in fact, regularly, embarrassed by requests which it cannot even attempt to answer. And the requests seem so simple, too. If we were asked to stop the next war, we would not be so embarrassed because that is a complicated, man-sized job, but we are asked to print a cure for fever blisters.

Lately we have been deluged by somewhat peremptory demands for a cure for canker sores in the mouth. Now that would appear simple. Canker sores are those little, white, painful areas that appear on the tongue and cheek; they come and go, and while they are there they hurt. Now I haven't the slightest idea of the cause of them, nor how to make them go away any sooner than when they get good and ready.

Dr. Clendening will answer questions of general interest only, and then only through his column.

to. If they were canker sores instead of canker—if they were something big and dangerous—I could tell in a minute. And it isn't only me; I have tried to get advice from other doctors in order to assuage my readers' anguish, but none of them knows any remedy for canker sores.

No One Knows

It has been the same way with fever blisters. I don't know anything about them and nobody else who ever practiced medicine knows anything about them. If you asked a doctor about ulcer of the stomach, or heart failure, or diabetes, or brain tumor, you would get a long discourse on treatment. But for fever blisters—only a disdainful shrug.

You would think that doctors would begin on simple things and gradually work up to the tough ones, but the rule seems the other way around. It reminds me of my first patient. I was just out of my hospital training and could handle a prolapsus, or an enlarged spleen, with the greatest of ease. When I faced the first patient I expected something colossal. What she said was, "Doctor, I have sweating feet." I had never heard in medical school or hospital of any remedy for sweating feet (I know now), and had never even considered the subject.

As to fever blisters, we know pretty well that they are probably due to the severe irritation of a nerve ganglion. The skin blister is simply an external manifestation of the trouble way back behind. The reason they hurt so much is that they are due to nerve pains.

Palliative Remedy

Of course, I know about using camphor ice and camphor-phenique, but these are simply palliatives. Their use reminds me of what Sidney Smith said to the little girl who was patting a turtle. "My dear," remarked the canon, "you might as well rub the dome of St. Paul's in the hope of pleasing the Dean."

For any permanent cure for recurrent fever blisters, science has been silent. Now, however, comes an announcement which seems to have every show of authenticity, that being vaccinated against smallpox will prevent recurrences.

One patient thus reported was tortured with recurrent attacks of herpetic eruptions on the lips for five years. After an ordinary smallpox vaccination they stopped, and have not recurred for several years.

At any rate, here is a definite cure for fever blisters suggested. And, at any rate, vaccination against smallpox will not hurt you.

E. E. B.: "For over two years I have craved for raw carrots. My skin is quite yellow and this has worried me considerably. Friends have told me that the craving is a sure sign of cancer. Is that true?"

Answer—It is not true that a craving for carrots or any other food is a sign of cancer. However, it is possible for carrots to cause a yellow discoloration of the skin.

SYNOPSIS

SARAH ANNE MELTON, minister's daughter and close friend of JUDITH DRAKE, daughter of luxury, finds her childhood romance has been blasted with JACK COURTNEY, who attains sudden fame by flying the Pacific, returns and falls in love with Judith. To Fairyville dies BOB KENNEDY, close friend of Jack's, receiving a broken leg in a crash at the airport.

YESTERDAY: Mrs. Allen, a family friend, calls at the parsonage and asks Corinne Nelson if she has seen the evening paper.

CHAPTER NINETEEN

CORRINNE'S face was impersonal, noncommittal, as she picked up the evening edition of the paper to which Mrs. Allen had referred.

"Any social news?" she asked, just as though she didn't know there was—just as though she hadn't seen Bob's name linked for the town to read, with that of a strange, dark creature. What her name was didn't matter particularly. It was enough that there was another girl.

Mrs. Allen took the paper and read the item aloud. It was the opening paragraph in a local society gossip column:

"Robert Ransom, juvenile favorite of the sub-deb crowd, has elected a favorite for his tennis matches and nocturnal wanderings. The lucky maiden is an out-of-town visitor. Consolation to a lonely blonde: cheer up, visiting girls always go home."

"Am I the blonde in the picture?" Corinne asked, forcing her voice to be amused. She was glad that Mrs. Allen couldn't see her heart whirling, dipping and sliding, like a funny little boat on a trapeze or roller coaster.

"You certainly are. So far as I've noticed he's never glanced at another town girl this summer. But he's young, and that father of his won't let him get too serious with anyone for a while."

Corinne wanted to run out of the house, into the night, to some place where she could scream and cry and scream again. But the four walls closed around her and Mrs. Allen beamed affably at her. No, she must be light, be gay, pretend that Bob did not matter at all. So she laughed, as she said:

"Mrs. Allen, the Ladies' Aid society is in formation at the church tonight, isn't it? Waiting to hear how I'm taking it? Tell them that my heart's cracked. I've lost three pounds, and I had a tea date with Bob today. I drank two lemonades."

But when the plump visitor had gone, Corinne took off her mask. "Bob and I did meet today, at the Center hotel in the dining room. Nobody but traveling men ever eat there—it's dark and gloomy with potted palms all around and Bob chose a nice, secluded corner. He told me this was just an interlude—he picked up the weed from a book—and he'd be back."

Her eyes flashed. "As though I'm an umbrella to wait behind a door or a towel on the guest room shelf! So I threw his fraternity pin in the water cooler in the hall. I dared him to ask for it."

Sarah Anne laughed, though she did not want to. Bob, young, embarrassed, wanting dreadfully to give that jeweled emblem to someone else, would have to give a bell-boy a tip to rescue it for him.

But Corinne would get over this. It was a romance of short duration. After all, when a girl had lived with a dream since she received her first Valentine, at 10, she had a real job to forget! She pitied herself, not Corinne.

Lynn Rhodes, hearing voices in the living room, paused at the door.

"Want to help me celebrate? I've made some unexpected money on a story. Why not go places?" Corinne clapped her hands gaily. "Why not indeed? Shall we dress?"

"Not formal clothes. You're all right as you are. But we should have another man. Let's see—how about that young aviator?"

"All gone," Sarah Anne answered. "Head over heels in love. And not with me. I know—there's Bing Wells!"

The man's eyebrows were raised in a quizzical, amused fashion he had. "Wells—Wells. Have I met him?"

"No, not yet. He's gay and utterly useless and sort of lazy and he would be fun. Shall I call him?"

Bing would say the right words at the right times. He was so utterly unimportant in her life that she need not worry about him.

Bing would be a good play fellow. Curiously, not really caring she wondered how he had reacted to Judith's engagement, or if he knew. Maybe he didn't.

So the four of them climbed into Lynn Rhodes' long car and went to dinner at a charming country club. They found an opera 20 miles beyond, and watched Gilbert and Sullivan's "Y-women of the Guard," and Sarah Anne wished that they had not come. There was that scene at the end when the jester's heart broke, because his dancing companion married a lord.

Even in the car again, skirting the star-filled night, his last song drifted back to her:

"I have a song to sing . . ."

And then:

"By a love-love loon,
Who fled from the mocking
throng, Oh!"

Was there no happiness, save for the very few? Here she was, and here was Corinne, and here was Bing Wells. Each one had a song to sing, and they all used the same words. Love was thin as cellophane, tissue paper, flimsy lace paper. It melted, it tore, it blew away. Oddly, she wondered if Lynn Rhodes, too, was in love.

So she asked, wind fluttering her dark curls, her brown eyes touched with a sorry mirth:

"Is your heart broken, getting better, or unscathed?"

"None of them. It's just going under."

"Under? Under what?"

"The anesthesia. I'm falling."

"Does the lady appreciate you?" Corinne took up the play. "I hope she does. I think you're nice."

"Thanks. Give her time. She hasn't known me long. She doesn't know me well." He lighted a cigarette and he didn't look at Sarah Anne, but her heart missed a beat. He was such a grand roomer. He was a nice person. He was a diversion. But she didn't want him, not even all wrapped up in tissue paper and with red ribbons. So she said lightly enough:

"Never mind, you grow on people."

"Very much," her sister supported her. "You and the lass will be off pitching woo one of these days. Oh, is that a carnival? Let's shoot white rabbits for kewpie dolls and things."

The carnival ground was small and crowded. There were people everywhere, and over it all a calliope blared a song from three summers ago. The hot, pungent smell of popcorn and peanuts filled the air. Toy balloons floated starward, and a Barker called to people to have their names spun from glass.

At Corinne's suggestion the four were about to shoot at clay ducks when a merry voice called to them. Three members of the party gasped, then smiled and spoke cordially. For the voice came from Judy and trailing along with her was Jack. Behind came Bob Ransom and the visiting girl, and other members of his sister's house party.

Bing Wells knew that Judith was engaged, Sarah Anne sensed. He did not greet her with the old comradery. He was courteous, aloof. Bob Ransom was embarrassed. He tried to steer the new girl away from Corinne, but she, with an impish gleam in her eye, started a conversation.

"There are so many things you must see while you're here," she said. "Get Bob to show you the old mill on the river road—it has a spyder bridge and he swings on the flying trapeze. And oh, the dining room at the Center hotel—third table from the door. You'll love it!"

If this was love, this stuff which Corinne was demonstrating, Sarah Anne was musing, then she was experiencing something else. For she didn't want to say bright, hurting things to Jack. She wanted to smooth that prickly road in her face, and take the worry from his eyes. Something was wrong. She looked curiously at Judy. Then she saw that Judy, too, was aware of it and was talking to distract him. She was wearing white silk tonight, and her wrist was heavy with expensive bangles.

"If only Bob Kennedy was somewhere near. He'd know what it's all about," Sarah Anne mused. In a moment Jack would be gone, and his worries were not hers now. She was idiotic to grow upset.

"Come on, Sarah Anne. You don't like this any better than I do. Let's get out of it," Bing was saying close to her ear.

TO PICKAWAY COUNTIANS

FRIENDS: The recently successful Father and Son banquet in Circleville, sponsored by the Pickaway District, Boy Scouts of America, was very encouraging to those responsible for the administration of Scouting in this District. It is their hope this can be made into an annual affair. As a result of this meeting, many fathers have indicated that they would welcome an opportunity to assist in the further understanding and development of this worthwhile work for boys. Incorporated herewith are some practical suggestions in this regard.

If you are the father of a Scout, take advantage of the opportunity to help others help your son by:

(1) Encouraging your boy in Scouting—attending the weekly troop meetings, advancing in Scout rank, paying dues, and going to Summer camp;

(2) Cooperating with Troop Leaders—learn what they are doing and offer your assistance; and

(3) Volunteering your services, if at all possible, as a member of the Troop Committee, or in some other leadership responsibility.

If you do not have a Scout in your family, but are interested in boys:

(1) Contact your pastor or school authorities and see that your church or school is actively sponsoring a Boy Scout Troop;

(2) Commend the men who volunteer their time and efforts as Scoutmasters and Counselors for the boys of the Community; and

(3) Speak well of the Movement especially to parents, and urge all boys to join a Scout Troop.

Every year in Pickaway county approximately 300 boys become 12 years of age. Less than one-fourth of these come under the influence of Scouting ideals because there is no troop for them to join. Scouting is not just a good thing, but an IMPORTANT thing.

TO SERVICE DEPARTMENT

OFFICIALS: A closer check should be kept by the service department on lights on bridges, especially those on the W. High street bridge. A resident of the district reports two of the lights have been out for seven or eight weeks and two others out for eight or ten days. It is important for the safety of motorists and pedestrians that bridge lights be kept in good repair. Some difficulty has been experienced in children breaking lights with stones and air guns. Police could make regular trips over the bridges. A few arrests for destroying city property would break up the practice.

TO THE STREET DEPARTMENT

EMPLOYEES: Have you noticed the pools of water that stand on Watt street just east of Court street after heavy rains? Cars passing through the pools throw water clear to the sidewalks. If it is impossible to repave the low sections, an application of patching material in the depressions may help the drainage to some extent.

Your church has enjoyed a steady growth, activities have increased and in general your 10 years of service can be viewed with the highest pride.

TO COUNCILMEN

MEMBERS: The decision of council to have relief for city clients handled through the county relief department seems a very wise move. Pickaway county's relief department, headed by D. H. Marcy, has been praised on numerous occasions for its efficient operation under trained personnel. The establishment of a relief department by the city would involve the expenditure of a considerable sum. Since the county department has complete records on city cases, and has been handling all the city relief work, it would appear unwise to establish a city relief agency.

CHAPTER NINETEEN

CORRINE'S face was impersonal, noncommittal, as she picked up the evening edition of the paper to which Mrs. Allen had referred.

"Any special news?" she asked, just as though she didn't know there was—just as though she hadn't seen Bob's name linked for the town to read, with that of a strange, dark creature. What her name was didn't matter particularly. It was enough that there was another girl.

Mrs. Allen took the paper and read the item aloud. It was the opening paragraph in a local society gossip column:

"Robert Ransom, juvenile favorite of the sub-deb crowd, has elected a favorite for his tennis matches and nocturnal wanderings. The lucky maiden is an out-of-town visitor. Consolation to a lonely blonde: cheer up, visiting girls always go home."

"Am I the blonde in the picture?" Corrine asked, forcing her voice to be amused. She was glad that Mrs. Allen couldn't see her heart whirling, dipping and sliding, like a funny little boat on a trapeze or roller coaster.

"You certainly are. So far as I've noticed he's never glanced at another town girl this summer. But he's young, and that father of his won't let him get too serious with anyone for a while."

Corrine wanted to run out of the house, into the night, to some place where she could scream and cry and scream again. But the four walls closed around her and Mrs. Allen beamed affably at her. No, she must be light, be gay, pretend that Bob did not matter at all. So she laughed, as she said:

"Mrs. Allen, the Ladies' Aid society is in formation at the church tonight, isn't it? Waiting to hear how I'm taking it? Tell them that my heart's cracked. I've lost three pounds, and I had a tea date with Bob today. I drank two lemonades."

But when the plump visitor had gone, Corrine took off her mask. "Bob and I did meet today, at the Center hotel in the dining room. Nobody but traveling men ever eat there—it's dark and gloomy with potted palms all around and Bob chose a nice, secluded corner. He told me this was just an interlude—he picked up the word from a book—and he'd be back."

Her eyes flashed. "As though I'm an umbrella to wait behind a door or a towel on the guest room shelf! So I threw his fraternity pin in the water cooler in the hall. I dared him to ask for it."

Sarah Anne laughed, though she did not want to. Bob, young, embarrassed, wanting dreadfully to give that jeweled emblem to someone else, would have to give a bell-boy a tip to rescue it for him.

But Corrine would get over this. It was a romance of short duration. After all, when a girl had lived with a dream since she received her first Valentine, at 10, she had a real job to forget! She pitied herself, not Corrine.

Lynn Rhodes, hearing voices in the living room, paused at the door. "Want to help me celebrate? I've made some unexpected money on a story. Why not go places?"

Corrine clapped her hands gaily. "Why not indeed? Shall we dress?"

"Not formal clothes. You're all right as you are. But we should have another man. Let's see—how about that young aviator?"

"All gone," Sarah Anne answered. "Head over heels in love. And not with me. I know—there's Bing Wells!"

The man's eyebrows were raised in a quizzical, amused fashion he had. "Wells—Wells. Have I met him?"

"No, not yet. He's gay and utterly useless and sort of lazy and he would be fun. Shall I call him?"

Bing would say the right words at the right times. He was so utterly unimportant in her life that she need not worry about him. Bing would be a good play fellow. Curiously, not really caring she wondered how he had reacted to Judith's engagement, or if he knew. Maybe he didn't.

So the four of them climbed into Lynn Rhodes' long car and went to dinner at a charming country club. They found an opera 20 miles beyond, and watched Gilbert and Sullivan's "Yvonne of the Guard," and Sarah Anne wished that they had not come. There was that scene at the end when the jester's heart broke, because his dancing companion married a lord.

Even in the car again, skirting the star-filled night, his last song drifted back to her:

"I have a song to sing . . ."

And then:
"It is sung to the moon
By a love-lorn loon,
Who fled from the mocking
throne, Oh!"

Was there no happiness, save for the very few? Here she was, and here was Corrine, and here was Bing Wells. Each one had a song to sing, and they all used the same words. Love was thin as cellophane, tissue paper, frilled lace paper. It melted, it tore, it blew away. Oddly, she wondered if Lynn Rhodes, too, was in love. So she asked, wind fluttering her dark curls, her brown eyes touched with a sorry mirth:

"Is your heart broken, getting better, or unbroken?"

"None of them. It's just going under."

"Under? Under what?"

"The anesthesia. I'm falling."

"Does the lady appreciate you?"

Corrine took up the play. "I hope she does. I think you're nice."

"Thanks. Give her time. She hasn't known me long. She doesn't know me well." He lighted a cigarette and he didn't look at Sarah Anne, but her heart missed a beat. He was such a grand roomer. He was a nice person. He was a diversion. But she didn't want him, not even all wrapped up in tissue paper and tied with red ribbons. So she said lightly enough:

"Never mind, you grow on people."

"Very much," her sister supported her. "You and the lass will be off pitching woo one of these days. Oh, is that a carnival? Let's shoot water rabbits for kewpie dolls and things."

The carnival crowd was small and crowded. There were people everywhere, and over it all a calliope blared a song from three summers ago. The hot, pungent smell of popcorn and peanuts filled the air. Toy balloons floated starward, and a Barker called to people to have their names spun from glass.

At Corrine's suggestion the four were about to shoot at clay ducks when a merry voice called to them. Three members of the party gasped, then smiled and spoke cordially. For the voice came from Judy and trailing along with her was Jack. Behind came Bob Ransom and the visiting girl, and other members of his sister's house party.

Bing Wells knew that Judith was engaged, Sarah Anne sensed. He did not greet her with the old camaraderie. He was courteous, aloof. Bob Ransom was embarrassed. He tried to steer the new girl away from Corrine, but she, with an impish gleam in her eye, started a conversation.

"There are so many things you must see while you're here," she said. "Get Bob to show you the old mill on the river road—it has a spidery bridge and he swings on it. You know, the modern young man on the flying trapeze. And oh, the dining room at the Center hotel—third table from the door. You'll love it!"

If this was love, this stuff which Corrine was demonstrating, Sarah Anne was musing, then she was experiencing something else. For she didn't want to say bright, hurtling things to Jack. She wanted to smooth that pucker out of his face, and take the worry from his eyes. Something was wrong. She looked curiously at Judy. Then she saw that Judy, too, was aware of it and was talking to distract him. She was wearing white silk tonight, and her wrist was heavy with expensive bangles.

"If only Bob Kennedy was somewhere near. He'd know what it's all about," Sarah Anne mused. In a moment Jack would be gone, and his worries would be hers now. She was idiotic to grow upset.

"Come on, Sarah Anne. You don't like this any better than I do. Let's get out of it." Bing was saying close to her ear.

GARDEN-GRAPH

Improved Autumn Bloom

There is a short cut to obtaining better autumn bloom on late perennials, and that is to shear their tops off. This shearing induces stocky growth and changes tall, thin plants into bushy, compact ones.

As shown in the accompanying Garden-Graph, when the plants are about ten to eighteen inches tall, shear or pinch off three to four inches of the top growth. This results in wonderfully improved plants for autumn bloom, and also gives a longer season of bloom.

In your eagerness to have early blooms, do not hesitate to top the plants. The plants thus treated respond quickly and send out many side buds which will form in the axils of the leaves, thus producing many more flowers.

GARDEN-GRAPH

Improved Autumn Bloom
There is a short cut to obtaining better autumn bloom on late perennials, and that is to shear their tops off. This shearing induces stocky growth and changes tall, thin plants into bushy, compact ones.

As shown in the accompanying Garden-Graph, when the plants are about ten to eighteen inches tall, shear or pinch off three to four inches of the top growth. This results in wonderfully improved plants for autumn bloom, and also gives a longer season of bloom.

In your eagerness to have early blooms, do not hesitate to top the plants. The plants thus treated respond quickly and send out many side buds which will form in the axils of the leaves, thus producing many more flowers.

Mr. and Mrs. Russell Creager enjoyed a basket supper at the home of Mr. and Mrs. Gail Creager, Wednesday.

CHINESE FOUND DEAD NEAR U. S. MARINE STATION

British Protest Against New Indignities; Mob Action Feared

time came straight from the British consulate.

Eight of his majesty's subjects, the consulate charged, were forced to play stellar roles in a veritable side-show put on by Japanese troops and police for the amusement of a crowd of Chinese coolies, including women.

Some of the men, it was asserted, were stripped nude as the Japanese at the concession barrier gave their clothing a microscopic examination.

Should be Courteous

Shigori Tashiro, Japanese consul general, indirectly replied to the British accusations by sending a note to all foreign consulates asking their nationals to be more courteous and refrain from arrogance towards the sentries. He said the sentries were only trying to perform their duties under difficult circumstances.

The British consulate today again protested against interference with British shipping on the Hai river at Tientsin, charging that lighters along the water front were halted and searched. Previous similar protests were ignored by the Japanese.

TOKYO REPORTS 49 OF MOSCOW'S RAIDERS DOWNED

of the Manchukuo troops, and killed one and wounded another Manchukuo soldier by machine-gunning.

"At 1:30 p. m. June 19, a dozen Soviet planes raided Khalhamiao on the north shore of Lake Buler, killing one soldier and wounding another.

"At 2 p. m. June 19, a dozen Soviet planes raided Isanganobo 12 times, their bombs causing some casualties among Manchukuo troops."

Manchukuo, it was added, protested to Outer Mongolia against the attacks.

Tientsin Overshadowed

This new Russo-Japanese crisis for the time being overshadowed the Tientsin, Kulangsu, and Swatow situations.

However, the foreign office spokesman in Tokyo asserted that the navy's request yesterday that foreign warships leave Swatow—interpreted in America as an ultimatum and rejected by American naval authorities—had been "grossly misrepresented." The request, he explained, was merely a "friendly warning" to the Western powers.

The spokesman repeated that the Tokyo foreign office was not able to specify Japan's terms for lifting of the blockade on the foreign concessions at Tientsin.

Local authorities at Tientsin, however, repeatedly said the blockade would be ended only when Britain agrees, on broad terms, to cooperate with the "new order" Japan is trying to institute in East Asia.

Outer Mongolia, independent from China for many years, has a Soviet form of government and is closely allied with Moscow. Her planes are supplied by Russia and her pilots and army trained by Soviet experts. Moscow and Ulan Bator are united in a defensive pact calling for automatic mutual assistance in case either Soviet is attacked.

ganizations as of Sept. 1, 1938. Howard Hall had 115 members on that date. The other two organizations each had 40 members.

Judge Terwilliger ordered the funds be used for relief purposes by the organizations for the soldiers and sailors of the World War and their dependents and for no other purposes.

The War Chest board was organized on Sept. 22, 1920. The trustees, by virtue of the offices they held, were Karl Herrmann, commander of Howard Hall post; the late Judge C. C. Young, and Forrest Short, county auditor.

The duty of the board was to administer a fund turned over to it by the War Chest committee. Down through the years a policy of accepting promissory notes was adopted for payments of money loaned to veterans. Little of the money was repaid.

The application for the dissolution of the board explained that various veterans' organizations were more familiar with those deserving aid and more general benefit would be derived from the remaining funds by a distribution through the organizations. The original fund amounted to about $4,300.

CHINESE FOUND DEAD NEAR U. S. MARINE STATION

British Protest Against New Indignities; Mob Action Feared

time came straight from the British consulate.

Eight of his majesty's subjects, the consulate charged, were forced to play stellar roles in a veritable side-show put on by Japanese troops and police for the amusement of a crowd of Chinese coolies, including women.

Some of the men, it was asserted, were stripped nude as the Japanese at the concession barrier gave their clothing a microscopic examination.

Should be Courteous

Shigori Tashiro, Japanese consul general, indirectly replied to the British accusations by sending a note to all foreign consulates asking their nationals to be more courteous and refrain from arrogance towards the sentries. He said the sentries were only trying to perform their duties under difficult circumstances.

The British consulate today again protested against interference with British shipping on the Hai river at Tientsin, charging that lighters along the water front were halted and searched. Previous similar protests were ignored by the Japanese.

Library Notes

A list of new books added to the Public Library during the last month, including brief notes on their subjects, were announced Tuesday by Miss Mary Wilder, librarian.

Information, Please, edited by Dan Golenpaul, is a game book based on the famous radio program starring Clifton Fadiman, Franklin Adams, and other celebrated "Information, Please," experts.

The Wining and Dining Quiz, by C. L. B. Brown and others. An amusing question and answer book about food.

What Makes You Thing So? by Vella Roberta Winner. An interesting and suggestive handbook for the publicity chairman of social, civic and study groups.

The March of Games, a quiz and fun book for young people.

You're the Doctor, by Victor George Heiser. The author of "An American Doctor's Odyssey," addresses his new book to normal people who want to keep well or to attain a higher standard of health.

A Doctor for the People, by Michael A. Shadid, an autobiography of an immigrant youth from Syria, who worked his way through medical school, established a practice and founded a hospital.

America in Midpassage, by Charles A. and Mary Beard, contains history, as readable as the finest fiction.

Next to Valour by John Jennings, is a novel that is a glowing page of history.

of the Manchukuo troops, and killed one and wounded another Manchukuo soldier by machine-gunning.

"At 1:30 p. m. June 19, a dozen Soviet planes raided Khalhamiao on the north shore of Lake Buler, killing one soldier and wounding another.

"At 2 p. m. June 19, a dozen Soviet planes raided Isanganobo 12 times, their bombs causing some casualties among Manchukuo troops."

Manchukuo, it was added, protested to Outer Mongolia against the attacks.

Tientsin Overshadowed

This new Russo-Japanese crisis for the time being overshadowed the Tientsin, Kulungsu, and Swatow situations.

However, the foreign office spokesman in Tokyo asserted that the navy's request yesterday that foreign warships leave Swatow—interpreted in America as an ultimatum and rejected by American naval authorities—had been "grossly misrepresented." The request, he explained, was merely a "friendly warning" to the Western powers.

The spokesman repeated that the Tokyo foreign office was not able to specify Japan's terms for lifting of the blockade on the foreign concessions at Tientsin.

Local authorities at Tientsin, however, repeatedly said the blockade would be ended only when Britain agrees, on broad terms, to cooperate with the "new order" Japan is trying to institute in East Asia.

Outer Mongolia, independent from China for many years, has a Soviet form of government and is closely allied with Moscow. Her planes are supplied by Russia and her pilots and army trained by Soviet experts. Moscow and Ulan Bator are united in a defensive pact calling for automatic mutual assistance in case either Soviet is attacked.

DUKE 45 TODAY; LONDON FRIENDS OBSERVE EVENT

LONDON, June 23—Hundreds of supporters of the Duke of Windsor and his American wife sat down this evening at "token" dinners in various parts of Britain to commemorate the Duke's 45th birthday.

The celebrations were organized by the Octavian Society, an association which pledged itself to combat all ungenerous treatment of the Duke of Windsor and assure fit recognition of his long services to the British empire.

In addition to commemorating the duke's birthday, the celebrations were designed to give expression to the society's campaign for the return of the duke and his wife to England.

PARIS, June 23—The Duke of Windsor quietly observed his 45th birthday today, the main event of the celebration having occurred last night at a dinner at the German embassy.

Entering and leaving the party, along with some 20 members of the diplomatic corps, the duke and duchess received the Nazi salute.

It was stressed, however, that the party had no political significance, as the ex-king has been a friend of Count Johannes Von Welzeck, the German ambassador, for years.

GALENTO TO MAKE JUNE 28 TITLE CONTEST ROUGH - - WHILE IT LASTS

LOSS OF ROUND ON FOUL NOT TO STOP "TWO TON"

Commission Busy Deciding What Can Be And What Cannot Be

By Lawton Carver

SUMMIT, N. J., June 23—Anthony Galento, Esq., the eminent puglist and cop-fighter, may not and probably will not beat Joe Louis for the world heavyweight championship at Yankee Stadium next Wednesday night, but it was evident here today at the former's training camp that he is preparing to make it one of the most boisterous title battles ever staged—unless it ends in a punch or two. Barring a switch in obvious plans, the challenger is going to see to it that the thing is strictly rough and tumble until such time as he or Louis is scraped up and carted away.

The New York State Athletic commission has taken official cognizance of the budding situation to the extent that Chairman John J. Phelan is lurking about the camps quoting rules and insisting they be observed. However, as a matter of fact, there won't be much that the commission or its duly authorized referee can do if Galento drops some punches out of bounds or deftly leads with the roof of his head or the points of his elbows.

Rough Fight Assured

They can penalize him a round, to be sure, just as any fighter may be, but that's about as far as they can go—and Galento knows it. People who pay up to $27.50 for tickets are not doing it to be on hand when somebody loses a fight because he's too rough. This is going to be taken into consideration by the third man in the ring and, anything short of the use of dirks, is going to be tolerated. Neither will go anywhere near that far. It won't be necessary.

A journeyman bouncer of considerable note, Galento has sharpened up his natural weapons over a long period of time for such jobs as this and while Louis ordinarily does a nice clean job of knocking foes unconscious he, too, must have learned a few tricks by this time. All in all, it ought to be a fine little riot, if the referee doesn't curb Galento's playfulness as presented yesterday when his shadow-boxing routine included back-hand practice and a brief butting drill. It was all in a spirit of fun, but probably significant.

Of course, he could cross us up on this by going meekly to his doom as many have before him, but it doesn't seem likely that he will, for he fights rough and tumble with much less than the heavyweight championship at stake, and he has always managed to get by with it—this time he has everything to gain and virtually nothing to lose by walking out there and giving Louis elbows, knees, backhands and butts and, perchance, a bite in close.

Galento Also Figure

They can warn him, take the round away from him and accept his apology, if any, but none of that ever helps anybody once the foul is in, and Galento figured that one out long, long ago. Moreover, in this bout loss of rounds won't matter one way or the other. It won't go the limit. Galento figured that one out, too.

Paralysis Stops Lou Gehrig

LOU GEHRIG, erstwhile iron horse of the New York Yankees, is shown (left) with Joe McCarthy, Yankee manager, in New York after the latter made public a report of Mayo Clinic physicians that Lou is suffering from a mild form of infantile paralysis and must play no more baseball. McCarthy said Gehrig will continue to serve as Yankee captain. Gehrig, suffering an inexplicable slump, removed himself from the line-up on May 2, after playing in 2,130 consecutive games, more than any other man in the history of baseball. The report indicated the first sacker, now 36 years old, had suffered from the paralysis for at least several years.

Joe Can Hit and So Can Tony; Galento Described

By Bill Corum

NEW YORK, June 23—Tom McArdle said: "I learned long ago that when you put two heavyweights in a ring, especially if they both can hit, that anything can happen to either one of 'em."

This is the most sensible thing that this reporter has heard said about next Wednesday night's Joe Louis-Tony Galento fist fight for the championship of the world.

Not only was it the expression of a sensible and conservative man, but also of a man who has been around a great many years, putting fighters into rings. McArdle was a matchmaker. An excellent one. He is now a retired cauliflower industrialist. But you can't keep him from slipping around once in awhile to take a peep at the ticker tape on the sock market.

What I am hoping to make clear is that it is no milk chocolate off Uncle Tom's chocolate-coated peanuts if the brawny bartender from Orange, N. J., pounds Louis into a pulp or winds up bouncing on his bald spot.

Underpinning Subject

But here I am, sailing away into astral space, while intending to get down to earth and say that Galento's underpinning reminds you of Miss Dietrich's because it is so different. It's a good thing Tony didn't go to Princeton while working his way through the bar-rooms of New Jersey. He couldn't have been a chorus girl in the annual musical comedy because one silk stocking for him would have bankrupted the "Mask and Wig," or whatever they call it at Old Nassau.

I was taking note of the Galento "gams" while watching him get a rubdown the other afternoon. If he had six legs instead two, he could rent 'em out for pillars on the portico of an old southern mansion in "Gone With the Wind."

He isn't built from the ground up, the ground is built up to him. His legs are like two beer kegs, wearing purple shorts and socks with no supporters. I had never realized before what a really noble foundation he has.

No wonder he hasn't been knocked off those tree stumps many times. When he gets 'em planted he must be rooted like the spreading chestnut tree, though really Tony is remarkably agile for a fellow of his freakish build. You've known those big fat girls who are light on their feet and can dance like streaks?

Well, he must be a little like

CONTROL GIVES DIZZY ANOTHER

Dean Allows One Run in Three Games; Giants Blow Close One

By Pat Robinson

NEW YORK, June 23—The late Urban Shocker—a great pitcher with the Browns and Yanks—used to say that a pitcher could win consistently in the major leagues without any stuff provided he had absolutely perfect control.

It was his idea that such a pitcher could toss up batting practice pitches with nothing on them and get by as long as he put the ball exactly where he wanted it to go.

We got to thinking of what Shocker said after noting that Dizzy Dean yesterday turned in his fourth victory for the Cubs without a defeat.

Of course, 'Ol Diz' is by no means what the ball players call a nothing pitcher. He may not be able to fog them through as he did for the Cardinals but he is still pretty quick on occasion; he still has a great curve and a fine change of pace and he has the phenomenal control of which Shocker spoke.

These assets should be more than enough to make him a winner for years to come. Two of his victories have been shut-outs—a three hit, 4-0 decision over the Bees and a 1-0 verdict against the Dodgers. His latest effort yesterday was a six-hit, 6-1 victory over the Bees.

One Run in Three Tries

Therefore, in three of his four starts he has given exactly one run. That's really marvelous pitching.

That victory moved the Cubs up close on the heels of the Giants who blew one in the ninth to the Pirates, 8-7. Each team used four throwers and Bowman, the last of the Pirate quartet won his own game with a double off Coffman.

The Reds and Dodgers were idle and the Cards took advantage of the pacemaker's holiday to knock off the Phillies again, 11 to 5. There is one nice thing to be said for Philly pitchers—they're a big boon to anaemic batting averages.

STATE AMATEUR GOLFERS RESUME TITLE CONTESTS

DAYTON, June 23—Impatient after a day of rest, 32 top ranking golfers brandished clubs today and marched onto the Miami Valley Country Club course for second round play in the annual Ohio amateur tournament.

Originally slated for yesterday, second round play was moved back 24 hours to allow the rain soaked courses to dry out and free competitors from wading around the layout instead of walking. Finals will be Sunday instead of Saturday.

Amiable Maurice McCarthy, the Cincinnati Irishman and defending champion, as well as one of the few contestants to circumvent the course thus far in par-71 figures, was slated to tee off early against R. W. Sulzer, another Queen City resident and a member of McCarthy's Cincinnati club.

McCarthy, anxious to capture the crown for the third consecutive year, was favored to easily overcome Sulzer. Bobby Servis, youthful Dayton contender and co-favorite with McCarthy, was pitted against A. Pietrzak, another Daytonite, who barely scraped through the first round.

Medalist Vic Subonis, Youngstown, had for his opponent, A. White, Middletown. Both survived the initial round in fine style.

MILLERS CLIMB TO TOP, TAKING BREWS IN CAMP

MILWAUKEE, Wis., June 23—The Minneapolis Millers today replaced the Kansas City Blues in top position in the American Association race after defeating the Brewers here 7 to 5 and 6 to 5 in a double-header.

Meanwhile, the Blues broke even with St. Paul, winning the first game 2 to 0 and losing the second 7 to 1. The split put them one-half game behind the Millers.

At Columbus the Red Birds and the Louisville Colonels were rained out but were scheduled to play again today.

The Toledo Mud Hens proved they were not called that in vain when they waded through mire to beat Indianapolis 4 to 3 in the opening of a series.

Scheduled for today were the following contests: Louisville at Columbus; St. Paul at Kansas City; Indianapolis at Toledo and Minneapolis at Milwaukee.

COLLEGE ROWERS READY TO MEET AT NEW HAVEN

NEW HAVEN, Conn., June 23—Decked out in its annual splendor, dominated by the crimson and blue of the rival camps, this old whaling port received a vast crowd today for the 77th Yale-Harvard regatta. It was expected to reach 50,000 by late afternoon.

Harvard, no worse than an even choice in the varsity event, was hopeful of sweeping the regatta after the good omen of a combination crew victory by two lengths over two rough miles yesterday. In the two-mile freshman and junior varsity events this morning, Harvard ruled a heavy favorite.

The greatest uncertainty hovered over the big race late in the day. It will be a downstream brush through hundreds of boats of all sorts on the Thames river, over the traditional four-mile course from Bartlett's Cove to the railroad bridge.

The general feeling is that Yale, through the final-week setback of the loss of veteran Charley Ruprecht, has had its chances greatly impaired. Nevertheless, an expression of confidence was issued from the Yale boathouse, Coach Ed Leader joining with Captain Bucky Byers in a hope-to-win statement.

Ruprecht at No. 6 was expected to give that little measure of poise needed to bring the blue home a winner in the four-mile brush, for he was one of two in the varsity shell who had rowed the distance before. Rich in strength and skill, Yale is nevertheless uncertain about whether it can spread its energy over the long haul against Harvard's slightly more experienced eight.

GALENTO TO MAKE JUNE 28 TITLE CONTEST ROUGH - - WHILE IT LASTS

LOSS OF ROUND ON FOUL NOT TO STOP "TWO TON"

Commission Busy Deciding What Can Be And What Cannot Be

By Lawton Carver

SUMMIT, N. J., June 23—Anthony Galento, Esq., the eminent puglist and cop-fighter, may not and probably will not beat Joe Louis for the world heavyweight championship at Yankee Stadium next Wednesday night, but it was evident here today at the former's training camp that he is preparing to make it one of the most boisterous title battles ever staged—unless it ends in a punch or two. Barring a switch in obvious plans, the challenger is going to see to it that the thing is strictly rough and tumble until such time as he or Louis is scraped up and carted away.

The New York State Athletic commission has taken official cognizance of the budding situation to the extent that Chairman John J. Phelan is lurking about the camps quoting rules and insisting they be observed. However, as a matter of fact, there won't be much that the commission or its duly authorized referee can do if Galento drops some punches out of bounds or deftly leads with the roof of his head or the points of his elbows.

Rough Fight Assured

They can penalize him a round, to be sure, just as any fighter may be, but that's about as far as they can go—and Galento knows it. People who pay up to $27.50 for tickets are not doing it to be on hand when somebody loses a fight because he's too rough. This is going to be taken into consideration by the third man in the ring and, anything short of the use of dirks, is going to be tolerated. Neither will go anywhere near that far. It won't be necessary.

A journeyman bouncer of considerable note, Galento has sharpened up his natural weapons over a long period of time for such jobs as this and while Louis ordinarily does a nice clean job of knocking foes unconscious he, too, must have learned a few tricks by this time. All in all, it ought to be a fine little riot, if the referee doesn't curb Galento's playfulness as presented yesterday when his shadow-boxing routine included back-hand practice and a brief butting drill. It was all in a spirit of fun, but probably significant.

Of course, he could cross us up on this by going meekly to his doom as many have before him, but it doesn't seem likely that he will, for he fights rough and tumble with much less than the heavyweight championship at stake, and he has always managed to get by with it—this time he has everything to gain and virtually nothing to lose by walking out there and giving Louis elbows, knees, backhands and butts and, perchance, a bite in close.

Galento Also Figure

They can warn him, take the round away from him and accept his apology, if any, but none of that ever helps anybody once the foul is in, and Galento figured that one out long ago. Moreover, in this bout loss of rounds won't matter one way or the other. It won't go the limit. Galento figured that one out, too.

TENDLER PICKS TONY TO UPSET BROWN BOMBER

SUMMIT, N. J., June 23—First expert observer flatly to pick Tony Galento to defeat Joe Louis for the world heavyweight championship next Wednesday night is Lew Tandler, famous lightweight of another era.

"Virtually every one who has fought Louis has had the jitters, but Galento will be unafraid and furthermore he can take a punch," said Tandler, now a Philadelphia business man. "In my opinion Galento will win the championship from Louis by a knockout."

Jim Braddock, who floored Louis and went eight rounds before losing the championship to the current kingpin, said:

"I've been up to Louis' camp and he doesn't look any too good to me. I think Tony has an excellent chance of winning. He's game and he can hit."

Paul Reviews His Life

HIGHLIGHTS ON THE SUNDAY SCHOOL LESSON

By Newman Campbell

(The International Uniform Lesson on the above topic for June 25 is II Corinthians 11:16-12:10; Philippians 1:12-24; 3:7-16; II Timothy 4:7, 8, the Golden Text being II Timothy 4:7, "I have fought a good fight, I have finished my course, I have kept the faith.")

"THIS ONE thing I do," writes Paul, "forgetting those things which are behind, and reaching forth unto those things which are before, I press toward the mark for the prize of the high calling of God in Christ Jesus."

Today we see Paul in prison in Rome at the end of his life. He realizes that his end is near, and he reviews his life, especially the part that has been lived since his conversion. Probably he thinks of that day he started for Damascus with his men, planning to find all—"men or women"—who had dared ally themselves with this new sect, the Christians, and to bring them bound to Jerusalem.

Then he sees, in memory, the great light that caused him to fall from his horse, and the voice that came from it, saying, "Saul, why persecutest thou Me?" He feels again the wonder and the revelation that he, too, must espouse the cause of this Man of Galilee and work for His glory, at whatever cost it may be.

Is Persecuted

He sees himself persecuted, footsore, hungry, thirsty, weary, beset with difficulties behind and before, but always "pressing toward the mark." To his disciples he writes of these sufferings: "Thrice was I beaten with rods, once was I stoned, thrice I suffered shipwreck, a night and a day I have been in the deep."

"I journeyed often in perils of water, in perils of robbers, in perils by mine own countrymen, in perils by the heathen, in perils in the city, in perils in the wilderness, in perils by the sea, in perils among false brethren."

"In weariness and painfulness, in watchings often, in cold and nakedness."

Sitting there a prisoner, Paul must have felt sometimes that it would be very peaceful to end all this strife and be at peace, and yet the needs of his churches and disciples worried him. "For me to live in Christ and to die is gain," he writes the Philippians. "For I am in a strait betwixt two, having a desire to depart, and to be with Christ: which is far better. Nevertheless to abide in the flesh is more needful for you." This was written during his first imprisonment, when he did, in fact, soon gain freedom for a time.

In this same letter Paul gives his disciples a rule of life that is often quoted and which is one of many passages in the Bible that we should memorize: "Finally, brethren, whatsoever things are true, whatsoever things are honest, whatsoever things are just, whatsoever things are lovely, whatsoever things are of good re-

Paul Reviews His Life

HIGHLIGHTS ON THE SUNDAY SCHOOL LESSON

By Newman Campbell
(The International Uniform Lesson on the above topic for June 25 is II Corinthians 11:16-12:10; Philippians 1:12-24; 3:7-16; II Timothy 4:7, 8, the Golden Text being II Timothy 4:7, "I have fought a good fight, I have finished my course, I have kept the faith.")

"THIS ONE thing I do," writes Paul, "forgetting those things which are behind, and reaching forth unto those things which are before, I press toward the mark for the prize of the high calling of God in Christ Jesus."

Today we see Paul in prison in Rome at the end of his life. He realizes that his end is near, and he reviews his life, especially the part that has been lived since his conversion. Probably he thinks of that day he started for Damascus with his men, planning to find all—"men or women"—who had dared ally themselves with this new sect, the Christians, and to bring them bound to Jerusalem.

Then he sees, in memory, the great light that caused him to fall from his horse, and the voice that came from it, saying, "Saul, why persecutest thou Me?" He feels again the wonder and the revelation that he, too, must espouse the cause of this Man of Galilee and work for His glory, at whatever cost it may be.

Is Persecuted
He sees himself persecuted, footsore, hungry, thirsty, weary, beset with difficulties behind and before, but always "pressing toward the mark." To his disciples he writes of these sufferings: "Thrice was I beaten with rods, once was I stoned, thrice I suffered shipwreck, a night and a day I have been in the deep."

"I journeyings often in perils of water, in perils of robbers, in perils by mine own countrymen, in perils by the heathen, in perils in the city, in perils in the wilderness, in perils by the sea, in perils among false brethren; "In weariness and painfulness, in watchings often, in hunger and thirst, in fastings often, in cold and nakedness."

Sitting there a prisoner, Paul must have felt sometimes that it would be very peaceful to end all this strife and be at peace, and yet the needs of his churches and disciples worried him. "For me to live in Christ and to die is gain," he writes the Philippians. "For I am in a strait betwixt two, having a desire to depart, and to be with Christ: which is far better. Nevertheless to abide in the flesh is more needful for you." This was written during his first imprisonment, when he did, in fact, soon gain freedom for a time.

In this same letter Paul gives his disciples a rule of life that is often quoted and which is one of many passages in the Bible that we should memorize: "Finally, brethren, whatsoever things are true, whatsoever things are honest, whatsoever things are just, whatsoever things are lovely, whatsoever things are of good report, if there be any virtue, and if there be any praise, think on these things."

Paul's review of his life is a review of his faith. He has been arrested and tried again, and he tells us that none stood by him. His friends deserted him. It would have been dangerous for them to have acknowledged the friendship. He feels his death is near, and he will be one more martyr to the cause of Christ. In fact, he was beheaded soon after the epistle to the Romans was written.

Paul's Doom Sealed

Paul no longer is a young man. He has been arrested and tried again, and he tells us that none stood by him. His friends deserted him. It would have been dangerous for them to have acknowledged the friendship. He feels his death is near, and he will be one more martyr to the cause of Christ. In fact, he was beheaded soon after the epistle to the Romans was written.

As he looks over the stirring events of his life he must feel weary and lonely. But he has accomplished much and earned his sainthood. He has gained recognition for the Gentiles and has established church in many places, especially in faraway parts. He has been a pioneer. He has also written many loving and anxious letters full of good advice both as to personal living and to guide the management of the various churches, letters which are an inspiration to met and women to this day. Even his imprisonment has done some good to the cause for which he is giving his life. Through it many have heard of the gospel of Jesus that might never have known of it, and have become converts. The Romans who have been his guards have respected and honored him.

And so, reviewing his life, he is moved to exclaim in all modesty but yet triumphantly: "I have finished my course, I have kept the faith."

Death is not too bitter to one who can truthfully say that.

COUNTY SCHOOL PROPERTY EVALUATION PASSES MILLION DOLLARS

FOUR ADDITIONS BOOST FIGURES TO $1,049,865

McDowell Discloses Fewer Pupils Enrolled During Last Term

Pickaway county school property increased in value during the last year with additions at Wayne, Madison, Monroe and Perry schools boosting the estimated worth over the $1,000,000 mark for the first time.

Supt. George D. McDowell, in filing his complete statistical report for the year with the state department of education, disclosed that the school evaluation in the county is now $1,049,865. Last year the value was $975,420.

The school enrollment during the last term was 163 pupils fewer than the same period a year ago.

During the last school year the enrollment was 3,750 pupils as compared with 3,913 the previous year. Mr. McDowell said the reports from the school indicate a steadiness in high school enrollment while that of the lower grades showed the decrease. The depression period and a lower birth rate was advanced as causes for the drop in enrollment in the lower grades.

The net enrollment figures for the county showed 1,477 boys and 1,337 girls in the elementary grades and 446 boys and 490 girls in high school. The total boys in school was 1,923 and girls 1,827. Total average daily attendance during the last year was 3,543.1 as compared with 3,587 the previous year. Aggregate days of attendance during the last year in the elementary schools was 482,185, and in the high school 154,483, a total of 636,669. Aggregate days of absence amounted to 35,800 days.

3,027 in Buses

During the last school year there were 3,027 children transported to school on buses as compared with 3,172 the previous year. Eighty-three buses were used last year as compared with 93 the previous year. New larger buses resulted in the decrease in the number of the vehicles. The seating capacity of the buses used during the last year amounted to 3,557 pupils. Buses average 2.174 miles daily. There are 132 tuition pupils in the county schools.

The report shows in grades one to eight there were 20 male and 81 female teachers. In grades nine to 12 there were 35 male and 38 female teachers. The total teachers is 174, including 55 men and 119 women.

There are 35 libraries in the county schools having 5,868 books for the elementary pupils and 13,873 for high school pupils. During the last year 1,008 books were added to these libraries at a cost of $1,451.15.

In the county system there are only 14 Negroes, 12 in the grade schools and two in high school. There are only two children in the entire system of foreign birth.

Eleven schools have cafeterias and during the year lunches were served to 948 pupils. Cost of operating the cafeterias amounted to $10,061.88.

The county school system had 40 beginner teachers last year, 17 in the grades, 22 in high schools and one special teacher. A total of 298 children were graduated from eighth grades and 180 from high schools. Eighth grade graduates included 140 boys and 158 girls, and in the high school, 101 boys and 79 girls.

Rural Wives Swap Husbands, Children and Cow!

Mrs. Edith June, left, and Mrs. Mildred Davis with some of their children

TWO rural wives of Columbiaville, Mich., one a grandmother of 47, the other 27, have swapped husbands, divided up 14 children evenly and shifted a cow to the home of the younger woman so that there would be fresh milk for the younger children. That's the amazing disclosure made by the women, Mrs. Mildred Davis, 27, now keeping house for Clarence June, 42, and Mrs. Edith June, 47, now doing the cooking for George Davis, 45.

The two husbands and two wives, still friends, have agreed to immediate divorces so that each may marry the other. Mrs. Davis is caring for her four little girls and three of the June children. Mrs. June, who is the mother of 12 children, is keeping seven of her own children. Two of her daughters are married and don't figure in the deal. "We're all perfectly happy," they explain. "We're keeping everything straight and honest."

STABBING ENDS OATH OF SEVEN YEARS' STANDING

NEW YORK, June 23 — Seven years ago Anthony Bonanni, 56, swore an oath of vengeance when a man he disapproved eloped with his daughter, Norma, now 24.

Today, the oath was fulfilled. John Isastia, 26, the son-in-law, was dead and Bonanni was held on a homicide charge. The enraged father plunged a stiletto into Isastia's heart when for the first time in seven years they met on a Greenwich village street corner, according to police.

An astrologer says he sees prosperity in the skies. But, gosh, we don't live up there—not yet, anyway.

German Border Activities Hint of Action in Summer

By Kenneth T. Downs
PARIS, June 23—Germany is rushing preparations for new action on the most gigantic scale since she started the vast struggle of power politics.

According to information arriving in Paris today through various channels, German troop movements along the Siegfried (Limes) line, fronting France, and along the Belgian, Dutch, and Polish borders, are more than routine maneuvers, are the Reich professes. In reality, Paris heard, Germany is completely manning those frontiers on a war basis. There the whole routine of life is being re-orientated for war purposes. Workers are putting in long overtime without extra pay, and troops are being billeted in private homes in the Saarland and Palatinate, adjoining France.

Harvest Rushed
Preparations are being rushed to complete the harvest as early as possible, and to transport the grain into the interior of Germany. Women are being pressed into service as mail carriers in some cities to replace the men who have been called into active army duty.

Informed sources in Paris believe that when all is ready, Germany will turn on the pressure, with the aid of her anti-comintern allies, both in Europe and the Far East, striking for Danzig and possibly even more.

These sources expect a move by the end of July, possibly astonishingly sooner.

None of the drum-beating which preceded Munich accompanies the movements this time. All is happening quietly, half secretly. These tactics are explained as calculated to prevent counter-moves by the Anglo-French front, or the creation of an atmosphere of high tension before the moment to act.

Coincident with ominous developments in Germany, it was reported that Moscow again has rejected the latest set of Anglo-French proposals for a tri-partite alliance.

As the question mark on Kremlin's intentions looms larger, real pessimism is developing in certain quarters here as to whether the proposed triple entente can be realized at all, in spite of Foreign Minister Georges Bonnet's declaration to the chamber of deputies' foreign affairs committee that it "cannot fail."

Pact Important
The importance of this pact cannot be overestimated. Its failure or success now can mean the difference between peace and war, in the opinion of many serious observers.

Rural Wives Swap Husbands, Children and Cow!

Mrs. Edith June, left, and Mrs. Mildred Davis with some of their children

TWO rural wives of Columbiaville, Mich., one a grandmother of 47, the other 27, have swapped husbands, divided up 14 children evenly and shifted a cow to the home of the younger woman so that there would be fresh milk for the younger children. That's the amazing disclosure made by the women, Mrs. Mildred Davis, 27, now keeping house for Clarence June, 42, and Mrs. Edith June, 47, now doing the cooking for George Davis, 45.

The two husbands and two wives, still friends, have agreed to immediate divorces so that each may marry the other. Mrs. Davis is caring for her four little girls and three of the June children. Mrs. June, who is the mother of 12 children, is keeping seven of her own children. Two of her daughters are married and don't figure in the deal. "We're all perfectly happy," they explain. "We're keeping everything straight and honest."

STABBING ENDS OATH OF SEVEN YEARS' STANDING

NEW YORK, June 23 — Seven years ago Anthony Bonanni, 56, swore an oath of vengeance when a man he disapproved eloped with his daughter, Norma, now 24.

Today, the oath was fulfilled. John Isastia, 26, the son-in-law, was dead and Bonanni was held on a homicide charge. The enraged father plunged a stiletto into Isastia's heart when for the first time in seven years they met on a Greenwich village street corner, according to police.

An astrologer says he sees prosperity in the skies. But, gosh, we don't live up there—not yet, anyway.

German Border Activities Hint of Action in Summer

By Kenneth T. Downs
PARIS, June 23—Germany is rushing preparations for new action on the most gigantic scale since she started the vast struggle of power politics.

According to information arriving in Paris today through various channels, German troop movements along the Siegfried (Limes) line, fronting France, and along the Belgian, Dutch, and Polish borders, are more than routine maneuvers, an the Reich professes. In reality, Paris heard, Germany is completely manning those frontiers on a war basis. There the whole routine of life is being re-orientated for war purposes. Workers are putting in long overtime without extra pay, and troops are being billeted in private homes in the Saarland and Palatinate, adjoining France.

Harvest Rushed

Preparations are being rushed to complete the harvest as early as possible, and to transport the grain into the interior of Germany. Women are being pressed into service as mail carriers in some cities to replace the men who have been called into active army duty.

Informed sources in Paris believe that when all is ready, Germany will turn on the pressure, with the aid of her anti-comintern allies, both in Europe and the Far East, striking for Danzig and possibly even more.

These sources expect a move by the end of July, possibly astonishingly sooner.

None of the drum-beating which preceded Munich accompanies the movements this time. All is happening quietly, half secretly. These tactics are explained as calculated to prevent counter-moves by the Anglo-French front, or the creation of an atmosphere of high tension before the moment to act.

Coincident with ominous developments in Germany, it was reported that Moscow again has rejected the latest set of Anglo-French proposals for a tri-partite alliance.

As the question mark on Kremlin's intentions looms larger, real pessimism is developing in certain quarters here as to whether the proposed triple entente can be realized at all, in spite of Foreign Minister Georges Bonnet's declaration to the chamber of deputies' foreign affairs committee that it "cannot fail."

Pact Important

The importance of this pact cannot be overestimated. Its failure or success now can mean the difference between peace and war, in the opinion of many serious observers.
